DIGITAL HOME THEATER SYSTEM

Sure, you want a custom built home theater, but either the layout of your house, your decorator, your budget, or your significant other won't allow it. Maybe you just can't run speaker wires to the back of your room. You've seen (and heard) "sound bars" before, but unless they were in the perfectly squared room, the surround effect just wasn't that engaging, or it just plain didn't sound good at all.

Let me introduce you to the ES7001 system by Marantz. Designed to compliment nearly any display device, and to provide that "big home theater" sound in any room. The ES7001 (or SSX system) packs left, center, and right speakers, digital amplifiers, surround image processing with listening position optimization, all in one very stylish aluminum enclosure. Did I also mention laden with features such as HDMI and optical digital inputs? System wide programmable remote? Wall mounting capabilities? You can even get yours with the optional SW7001 subwoofer.

Just set up your system by placing the SSX directly above or below your display device, connect your DVD player and DSS or cable box, and you are set to watch movies complete with amazing surround experience. Maybe you prefer the sports channel and want that feel of the game with stadium like ambiance. Wherever your viewing preferences take you, the ES7001 by Marantz will take you there in style..... and in surround
